

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Brad Lord-Leutwyler received a doctorate of jurisprudence from Willamette University College of Law, where he simultaneously earned specialized certification in dispute resolution. As a very small, selective, private law school with a high degree of faculty- student interaction and an intimate learning environment, Willamette is one of the finest law schools in the nation (this despite the fact that you have probably not heard of it, which is why you need to put down your "U.S. News Ranking Guide" and do your own independent research: Willamette is one of, if not the best law school in the United States. They will not brag, so he will do it for them). (<http://www.willamette.edu/wucl/>)

A retired member of the Oregon and Alaska Bar Associations, Mr. Lord-Leutwyler was an undefeated trial lawyer. After leaving the practice of law, he studied astrophysics at the University of New Mexico before becoming an adjunct professor of philosophy at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. He teaches critical thinking and logic. He is also an award-winning teacher with one of the world's largest private education companies and is the co-author of the acclaimed Spanish-English Compendium of Law, as well as the novel, Lawyers, Guns and Money, both of which you should own.
